The "Do Not Call" registry is an excellent idea. If our family wanted to purchase any of the products or services that telemarketers call about, we would exercise our own initiative and call the appropriate company. If our family wanted to donate to any of the causes telemarketers call about, we would again initiate a call to the office of ~~the~~ charitable organization and make our own arrangements for contribution. Decisions to buy or give belong to citizens without pressure.

Sincerely,
Beth Tucker

I'M all for stopping all telemarketing calls. I feel that my private phone should not be used in this manner. I pay for my personal use of it. and resent it being used for business. I resent being interrupted with calls especially those on a computer. When I answer those, no one is on the line. Very irritating.

If any one is to be charged for these calls then it should be the TeleMarketers. Each call should be charged a fee and the fees should be taken off the personal phone of the number called. I should not have to pay a fee of any amount to be taken off their lists as I never "joined" their list.

Dear Sir:

I was so glad to hear that you are investigating the telemarketers. After working at Harris Publishing in Norfolk, Virginia for ten months, I have heard both sides of the story.

Examples:

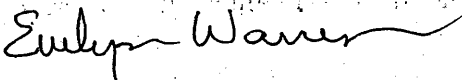

1. Mother's with babies and other children at home are crying and want to be removed; however, no one wants to remove them because it effects their hit rate.
2. Mother's with more than one child at the school or college are called 10 or more times a week. They would also like to be removed.

Also, they are calling blind, elderly, disabled people, and people who did not attend that college. I think that the directories are nice, but I think they should be by mail order only.

I hope that you will continue to investigate this problem. People are tired of being bothered when they get home from work. Also, some people feel that the directory is an invasion of privacy.

Thank you, for your time, and for reviewing this matter.

Sincerely,

Evelyn Warren

Dear FTC,

I recommend you
establish a toll free #
through which consumers can request to be put on a
"do not call" list.

This letter is in response to your request for inputs on DON'T CALL ME I'LL CALL YOU.

I fully support your effort to establish a DONOT CALL REGISTR Y. MY reasons are:

I do not do business over the phone. Any one that calls me is cut off with ~~that~~ statement. These calls are very annoying.

Probably the most annoying is the vendors who dial a string of numbers so that they are assured of getting a response. All of the rest of the numbers dialed are still dialed and when picking up the phone there is no Body on the line. As a retired individual I receive at least 6-10 of these calls each week.

I also support any actions that you may make as to the interchanging of my billing information to other individuals.

I sincerely hope that you may be successful in controlling the miss use of telemarketers.
